

Mokena Homecoming Celebration Set For Sept. 19-21

100,000 ARE EXPECTED AT LUTHERANS' CENTENNIAL MEET, SOLDIERS' FIELD

ABOUT THIS — AND — ABOUT THAT

By OLIVER GEDEIST

TURN ABOUT.—Democratic politicians are calling economy-minded Republicans in Congress Economans. Turn about would justify Gopers in retorting, Spendemanias.

GOOD IDEA.—Poet Lord Alfred Tennyson wrote a poem about how to treat one who had lost her virtue: "Give her the wages of going on, and still to be." At the end of the poem was this line: "Give her the wages of going on, and NOT TO DIE." He was a poet with good sense.

RICHES.—In a good poem one may find riches. In many good poems one may find great wealth—wealth of spirit, wealth of mind, that is. Some of the most beautiful thoughts in the short period of man's history have been in poetry, just as spiritual stimulation can be found in beautiful music and entrancing flowers. The difference: the poet writes it, speaks it, and it is, unfortunately, easier to grasp that way, while we must translate the inspiration of music and flowers into words for ourselves.

FOR EXAMPLE.—In "Little flower in the Crumpled Wall"—
"Little flower—but if I could understand
What you are, root and all, and I should know what God and man is."

IF WE KNEW.—If we knew "what God and man is" maybe we would be more kindly disposed, as we ought by right to be. Perhaps we would be more considerate of others without being reminded. An incident the other day brought this to mind. A man who looked as though he should have more courtesy entered a train coach, shoes muddy, sat down, pushed the seat forward, put his muddy shoes on the seat where some one was soon to sit. If he had known what "God and man is" he would have avoided soiling some one's clothing.

EXPLANATION.—There is much smugness in the world—and where it ought not to be. The scorn of a smug world forces us to forget or ignore many of the courtesies we owe to ourselves to practice. Too often we refuse to yield to "softness" of word or practice because we fear the scorn of those who neglect the fine thoughts and actions which should be our motivation.

POOR LIVING.—Miners and their wages and Mr. John L. Lewis' ambitions and selfishness occupy a large part of the news. Popular with his miners, a man of strong influence, Mr. Lewis has failed to help the miners to learn a better way to live than is their habit. He should teach them that they are one part of the nation, that they could get more out of life if they learned to use more of the facilities for gracious living. He should teach them to use the money they make to live more comfortably. But he could not, of course, "hit" the headlines as often that way.

NOT WORTH IT.—Plutarch remarked, about pleasures, that "all other pleasures are not worth its pains." Wonder if in his time there were "morning after" headaches. His words suggest that he may have had firsthand experience.

A GEM.—Emerson wrote, "One of my friends expects everything of the universe, then is disappointed when the maximum desire is not realized." He would find the same thing true now.

HAPPY ENDING.—But we end the week's column with a happy item. An auctioneer asked a group of buyers not to bid on a horse because it was trained to left-knee pressure. An ex-soldier who left his right leg in France needed the horse. He got it for $50. Happy day! And a happy week to you!

Miss Nebaker to Wed

Miss Virginia Nebaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher S. Nebaker of Alameda, Calif., will be married to Dr. Grant Fletcher of the United States army, in Little Chapel of the Flowers, with the bride's cousin, Judge Dudley Nebaker, officiating. The Nebakers formerly lived in Mokena.

NO SERVICES 2 SUNDAYS

St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church, Mokena, will have a service vacation for two weeks, beginning July 20 and going through July 27. Services will be resumed August 2.

Delegates representing over 5,400 congregations and preaching stations with a total of 1,564,000 adherents, will assemble from July 20 to July 29 at the Palmer House, Chicago, for the fortieth national convention of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states.

An historical pastoral service will be held Friday, July 25th, in First St. Paul's Lutheran church, in which edifice, then located at the corner of LaSalle and Ohio streets, the constitution of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states, was effected April 26, 1847.

On Sunday, July 27, a gigantic centennial rally and service will be held at Soldier Field, 3 p. m., at which Dr. J. W. Behnken, president of the Missouri synod, will preach the sermon to a congregation which it is estimated will be in excess of 100,000. Special trains, buses, and chartered planes will bring Lutherans from distant points for this centennial celebration.

A centennial concert will be given in the Medinah Temple Wednesday, July 23, when Bach's "Reformation Cantata" will be sung by a group of selected choirs and accompanied by the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

A centennial fellowship evening is planned on the campus of Concordia Teachers college, River Forest, for Saturday evening, July 26, and an alumni night Monday, July 28.

The convention's opening service will take place in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House July 20, with Dr. Arthur Brunn, eastern vice-president, as speaker. Dr. Brunn will emphasize the blessings bestowed upon the Lutheran church of the Missouri synod during the past 100 years and the challenge presented to the forthcoming convention for the 100 years which lie ahead.

The early "pilgrim fathers" of the Lutheran church of the Missouri synod were part of a vast migration movement of Lutherans who over 100 years ago, in order to escape religious persecution and to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience, came to America and founded the Lutheran church, commonly known as the Missouri synod, which has enjoyed such a remarkable growth making one of the great, thrilling stories of expanding Christianity during the past century.

Lutherans of the Missouri synod established a nationwide system of 1,210 private Christian day schools, with an enrolment of over 80,000 children. Sunday schools number over 4,000 with a total enrolment of over 330,000 children and teachers. Last year Lutherans of the Missouri synod gave a total of $79,746,418 for the support and expansion of their church's work at home and abroad.

All services for Sunday, July 27 only, will be suspended in Christ Evangelical Lutheran church, Orland Park, the Rev. A. Lach, pastor and in Immanuel Lutheran church, Mokena, the Rev. A. W. Gode, pastor, to permit those participating in the Soldiers' field and other activities of the centennial to arrive at their destinations in time for the services. A musical program will start the program at Soldiers' field at 3 P. M., with divine services starting at 3:30.

Bride-Elect Honored

Friday night July 11, Mrs. Russell Kohlhaugen entertained at a miscellaneous shower in her home, honoring her sister-in-law, Miss Annette Kohlhaugen, who will be married to Frank Fleck, July 20. The bride's chosen colors of pink and white were carried out in the decorations. When the honored guest arrived she was presented a corsage of pink and white carnations by the hostess. A pink and white umbrella was suspended over the table upon which the gifts were placed.

Crash bunco was played, high was won by Betty Bixler, second Virginia Osun, low by Vernetta Hossbach. Duplicate prizes were given the bride-to-be. Six tables were played and a two-course luncheon was served. Many beautiful gifts were received.

The marriage of Miss Kohlhaugen and Mr. Fleck will take place in St. Peter's church Sunday, July 20, at 3 p. m. All friends are invited.

Whitlarks Return

Mrs. F. C. Whitlark and daughter Marianne recently returned from a motor trip through Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi, and Alabama. They had accompanied the former's son and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. F. L. Whitlark. Dr. Whitlark has been assigned to the naval hospital at Memphis, Tenn., by the navy.

Year's Village Cost Set at $4,900

Appropriations for the current fiscal year of the Village of Mokena were set up at the July meeting of the village board of trustees.

The board enacted an ordinance assessing taxpayers the sum of $4,900 to pay the village operating costs for the period beginning July 1 and running to June 30, 1948.

The largest amount was for side walks and streets, $1,200; lighting, $1,000, salaries $1,000, contingent fund $700, police and fire department $500, and for the building and repair fund, $500.

New Books

New books are announced by Mokena Book Club and are available in the library room, village hall. They make good summer reading. The Book club officers say, and may be had at the library. The new books are listed as: "The Magnificent Barb", Dana Faralla;

"The Lazy Gardener", William Pryor; "Inside U. S. A.", John Gunther; "Afterglow", Elizabeth Wood;

"Gentlemen's Agreement", Laura Hobson;

"Three Came Home", Agnes Newton Keith;

"Mrs. Mike", Benedict and Nancy Freedman.

Bobzin-Swinford Elects Officers

Bobzin-Swinford post American Legion, Frankfort, elected officers for the next year at a meeting Monday night. Donald Oetter was named commander. Howard Osmus senior vice-commander, Norton Blaylock junior vice-commander, Marvin Weltendorf adjutant, James Raffauf finance officer, Clarence Heisner sergeant-at-arms, Lloyd Lühring service officer.

Installation of the newly elected officials will be held September 11.

The post has plans underway for a dance to be held some time in August.

Surprise Shower

Mrs. Herbert Stege gave a surprise miscellaneous shower Saturday evening in her home in Matteson, honoring her sister, Miss Frieda Schrank of Mokena, who will be married to Donald Hamilton of New Lenox Sunday July 20. Airplane bunco was played. Many lovely gifts were received.

Bull Sold

Henry F. Leopold, a Brown Swiss breeder of Orland Park, recently sold the bull Willow Draw Jesbudget's Leo $1778, to William F. Decker, Ancona, according to a report from Fred S. Idtse, secretary of the Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' association, Beloit.

4-H FAIR PROGRAM MATURING AS DATE NEARS; PRIZES ARE TO BE ATTRACTIVE

South Cook 4-H fair plans are rapidly nearing maturity with premium lists expected to be ready for publication in a week or two, according to Cy Radcliffe of Tinley Park.

General fund solicitation has been limited to a deadline, July 19. It is understood that appointments, because of vacations, will take 4-H officials back to complete some of the calls after that date, but general solicitation is scheduled to end at that time.

IT'S PLEASANT TO SIT WITH PUBLIC OFFICIALS WHO TRY TO AID VILLAGE

One of the big problems confronting the officials of every newly incorporated community is that of zoning. Charged with responsibility under statutes, officials have the double problem of protecting property values and at the same time safeguarding many rights which would be prohibited under zoning law.

Talking with New Lenox officials, this point was interesting because in New Lenox, as in every other newly incorporated area, there are persons who fear that zoning laws will hamper activities which previously have gone unhindered.

Officials of New Lenox appreciate the fact that zoning is a cause of disturbance to many, and it was pleasant in conversation, and in attending a meeting of the village board of trustees, to find a deep-seated conviction that while zoning is imperative, the interests of the community as a whole will be observed with the least possible disturbance to legitimate activities and rights.

Government and improvements cost money, and this money must be raised through taxation. And in this, too, New Lenox follows the pattern of all communities. Again, it was refreshing to hear officials talk very simply about needs, how many things may be done at the lowest possible cost to taxpayers, but done well, and how assessments might be made without being excessively burdensome. One of the members said that all taxes, however necessary and just, always seem a burden, but willingly borne by all in return for considerate and efficient government.

Appropriations must be made this week, it is understood, and it was the pleasant privilege of the editor of this paper to observe the scrupulous care of the official governing body of New Lenox in setting the cost of operating the village's public affairs.

Next week we will give more details of village officials.

Plans are now complete for the Will county 4-H picnic, sponsored by the Will County 4-H federation, to be held Sunday July 20, at Gerdes woods, one mile east of Wilton Center and three miles west of route 45. This year, in place of the usual softball elimination contest, the committee has planned afternoon activities for everyone. Softball, horseshoe and volleyball games will be organized, and for those who want something a little less strenuous, other games have been planned.

A potluck supper will follow, succeeded by group games, led by Harlow Nicholson and group singing led by Dorothy Kohl of the Mokena Jolly Troopers. The New Lenox Bluebirds will present stunts, and the program will conclude with the installation of Will county federation officers for 1947-1948 and the candlelighting ceremony. Robert Loitz, president of Rural Youth, will be installing officer in the absence of the federation president of 1946-1947, Elvis Gast. The new officers are Alice Smith, New Lenox, president; Ronald Hack, Peotone, vice-president; Helen Reddy, Manteno, secretary; Jack Chestnut, Mokena, treasurer; Kenneth Heisner, Peotone, recreation chairman; Jean Murphy, Elwood, Girls' corresponding secretary; Don Benbrooks, Custer Park, boys' corresponding secretary; and Rosemary Archibald, New Lenox, press reporter.

The committee for the picnic consists of Jack Chestnut, general chairman, Kenneth Heisner and Miss Reddy in charge of recreation, Miss Smith and Ruth Hamilton in charge of the program, Irwin Goodwin in charge of the refreshment stand, and Miss Archibald, publicity chairman.

The committee states that the only admission is a covered dish for the supper and a desire to have fun.

Immanuel Organ Fund Being Raised

Funds for a new pipe organ for Immanuel Lutheran church, Mokena, of which the Rev. A. W. Gode is pastor, are being rapidly raised. It was reported this week.

Approximately $2,000 of the required $5,000 fund has been secured, it was said. The organ is to be Wick's, two-manual with pedal. It is hoped to install the organ within a few months.

CIVIC CLUB ANNOUNCES SPECIAL PLANS FOR GIGANTIC SHOW IN 3-DAY PERIOD

N. E. WILL COUNTY Softball LEAGUE

THE NORTH EAST SOFTBALL
New Lenox A.C. has set an early pace in this 12-game schedule by winning their first three games without a defeat, thus being in first place with a one-game margin. The Mokena Robins show promise of overcoming that one game deficit.

Standings as of July 10

	Won	Lost
New Lenox A.C.	3	0
Mokena Robins	2	1
Lincoln Estates	1	1
Goodenow	1	2
Matteson	0	3

Next Week Schedule

Sunday July 20, New Lenox at Matteson.

Tuesday, July 22, Goodenow vs. Lincoln Estates (at Mokena).

The Mokena Robins played two games last week, the results being one win and one defeat. The game last Wednesday evening, between Goodenow and Mokena, being their third league game, proved to be a one-sided affair, the score 38 to 4. Thursday night, the Robins traveled to Frankfort, only for the ride, yes, you guessed it, defeated 12 to 11. A return game will be played in the near future. This Friday, July 18, finds the strong Stone City Vet team from Joliet here to meet our Mokena Robins. Game time will be 9 P. M.

Party, Barn Dance Mark 15th Birthday

Miss Audru Wenzel of Mokena celebrated her 15th birthday last Sunday with a late afternoon dinner party in her home. In the evening a weiner roast was held on the lawn. All guests were from Chicago. Saturday evening Miss Wenzel was the honored guest at a theatre party at the W.L.S. Barn Dance given by Geraldine and Viola Wheeler. Following the theatre party the group was served refreshments by Mrs. Dewey Wheeler Sr., at her home in Chicago.

Frankfort's Silver Cross Fund at Top

Frankfort and the surrounding area provided $1,133.25 in contributions in the Silver Cross hospital fund drive, according to Albert H. Krusemark, Jr., chairman of the committee in the area.

Associated on the committee were the Rev. Erich Bizer, Dr. W. V. Hedges, A. C. Bauch, Eugene Hinspeter, Mrs. Joseph Scott, Mrs. Stanley Johnson, Mrs. Bernice Peterson, Mrs. Alvin Harnack, Mrs. Fred Heisner, Mrs. Glenn Schroeder, Mrs. Clara Kohlhaugen, Mrs. Herbert Hilgendorf, and Mrs. E. C. Davison, all of whom, Mr. Krusemark stated, gave unstintingly of their time and energy to make the drive a success.

Organ Dedication At Green Garden

Dr. Forrest W. Hoisington, district superintendent of the Joliet district of Rock River conference, was the principal speaker at an organ dedication service in Green Garden Methodist church last Sunday evening, July 13.

The church recently purchased and installed the organ.

The Rev. Lloyd Coleman, pastor, presided at the service, which was held amid the altar banked with flowers.

A feature of the service was the reading of a poem by Miss Muriel Bettenhausen, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Wanner. The poem, "Poem of Dedication," was written by Elda Kruff Johnson.

Ladies of the W. S. C. S. completed the evening by serving light refreshments.

Box Supper

The P. T. O. of Ann Rutledge school, Lincoln Estates, has announced the date for its July old-fashioned box supper. The date is Saturday evening, July 26, according to the committee, which is composed of Mrs. Norman Bradley, Mrs. Allen Dixon, and Mrs. Kissel Barton.

Plans have been made for the 1947 Mokena homecoming. This announcement was made early this week by President Nick Helman of Mokena Civic club.

Arrangements were delayed because of the limited number of amusement enterprises and the fact that all of these were booked for practically all the summer.

While details have not been fully developed, the homecoming is assured. The dates have been set. Beginning Friday, September 19, the show will continue through three days, ending with Sunday, September 21, which is expected to reach a high point in attendance.

The Civic club has engaged the Miller Amusement enterprise, one of the largest and outstanding entertainment concerns in the country. Delay in setting a homecoming date was due partially to the fact that Miller could not be secured for an earlier date. The Civic club felt that a later date with high-grade entertainment would be better than an earlier date with less popular entertainers.

Plans call for an open-air platform with free entertainment. This year there will be an additional ride. Last year there were three rides, but the Civic group has arranged for four rides this year.

The homecoming will be held on Front street in Mokena. Details of prizes have not yet been announced, but this detail is expected to be announced soon.

"We are setting up what we believe will be the best homecoming we ever had," Mr. Helman stated.

Shirley Ruth Jones Has 16th Birthday

Shirley Ruth Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Jones of Mokena, celebrated her 16th birthday, Saturday July 12, with a party in her honor.

Refreshments consisted of delicious sandwiches, root beer and pope ade, angel food cake, and a lovely big birthday cake with 16 pink candles. Shirley received a great many lovely gifts from friends. The following attended:

Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Whitney and Ned Whitney of Joliet; Jean Gade, Marlene Ahrens, Leonard Iverson, and Donald Jiskra of Chicago, Lois Bell, Dolores Cleveland, Mary Gorham, and Ralph Speaker of Marley, Mary Alice Knowles of New Lenox, and Cecelia Walsh, Joanne Marti, Elaine Spiess, Joan Luplow, Patsy Steele, Donald Stauffer, Donald Miller, Bob Cooney, Marvin Homering, Don Heyden, Roy Carlsen, Jimmie Gillette, Donnie Olson, and Jack Marti, of Mokena. Alice Sizer, Dorothy Ann Rauch, Carol Benson, Marcia Larson, Wilbur Buske, and Richard and Robert Kreml of Mokena were unable to attend, as was Raymond McGuire of Palos Park, formerly of Mokena.

Will Filed

A petition was filed last week with Probate Clerk Donald C. Lang to admit to probate the personal property will of the late William Semmler, founder and publisher and editor of The Semmler Papers, The News-Bulletin, The Tinley Park Times, The Orland Park Herald.

The estate included the three papers and The Midlothian Messenger, although prior to his death Mr. Semmler had disposed of his interest in the Messenger.

Mrs. Margaret M. Semmler, widow, was named in the will as sole beneficiary; she was, also, named as executrix, without bond. Mr. Semmler died June 8, 1946.

County Legion Council In Frankfort Tonight

The Will County Council, American Legion, is scheduled to hold a meeting this Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the village hall of Frankfort.

Bobzin-Swinford post will be host to the gathering and a social committee to have charge of affairs will be composed of James Raffauf, Ralph Neland, Warren Bobzin, Arthur Fleck, Walter Mark.

Riemanns on Vacation

The Rev. and Mrs. William J. Riemann and daughter Marilyn have gone to Detroit Lakes in Minnesota to spend a vacation. They will be gone two weeks.

Burned Child Now Able to Get Out

Little Dianne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brown of Frankfort, who was seriously burned several months ago, has so far recovered that she is able to join other children in outdoor play.

Friends, put on a special party to assist in treatment for Dianne shortly after she was burned, and the parents have expressed themselves as deeply grateful for the kindnesses and the help received.

RAMPAGING BULL SENDS KONOW FARM EMPLOYEE TO HOSPITAL BADLY HURT

A previously tame bull went on a rampage late Tuesday afternoon on the farm of Herman Konow, near Marley, and an employee, 65-year-old William Peterson, went to Silver Cross hospital. A dog, Buster, probably saved his life.

The injured man had gone out to round up cattle when the attack was made. The bull, minus horns, with apparently no provocation, turned into an angry attacker, and when he had finished his attack Mr. Peterson was left with a crushed leg at the ankle and bruises, including a badly lacerated head.

Buster, owned by the Konow family, went to the assistance of Mr. Peterson and by repeated attacks on the bull, finally drove him off and gave Mr. Peterson a chance for his life.

When the cattle had all been accounted for, and Mr. Peterson remained away, members of the Konow family went to look for him.

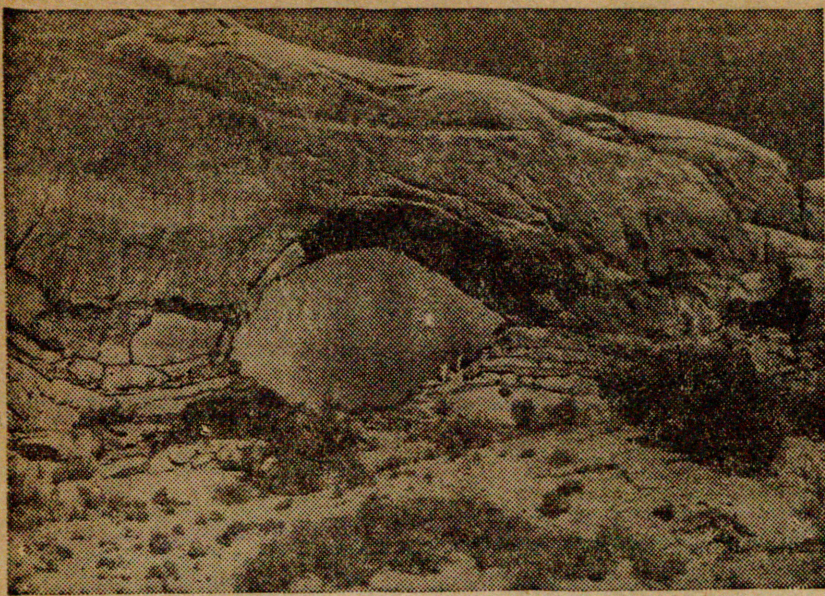

Mr. Peterson was unable to move when he was found, about 6 o'clock, an hour after the attack.

The bull is two years' old and has had a reputation for docility, it was stated, and the attack was therefore not even thought of, catching Mr. Peterson unawares.

The injured man's leg was put into a cast and it is expected that he will return home within a week to recuperate.

And Buster is a popular dog.

STORY OF EROSION . . . Acting through the ages, wind and water have carved this masterpiece of nature—the North Window in Arches national monument, Utah.

VAST LABORATORY

National Monuments Protect Scientific, Historic Features

WNU Features.

Several months ago National Park service received an urgent appeal from a small boy. "Send me some information," he wrote, "my class is studying about it." One might assume that the little boy was revealing an overconfidence in the ability of National Park service to "come across." Actually, the youngster was not too far out of line. The 171 areas that make up the national park system of the United States cut a wide swath across the total of natural and human phenomena.

Throughout the entire country there is a genuine thirst for knowledge and from 500 to 1,500 requests for information are received daily in the central office of National

National Parks Eleventh In a Series

Park service. These requests come not only from school children, but also from mature men and women. Many more thousands of people go directly to the national parks, monuments and historic sites to seek first hand for the answers to their questions. The national park system serves as a vast laboratory for the study of North American biology, geology, paleontology, history and pre-history.

The great national parks, such as Yellowstone, Glacier, Yosemite and Grand Canyon, were established primarily for the protection of magnificent scenery, but each of these parks also contains a boundless variety of natural phenomena. The national monuments, on the other hand, have been created usually to protect a single scientific or historic feature—an extinct volcano, an ancient Indian ruin or an early American fortification.

It often has been said that a national park covers a large area, while a national monument is small. This is not true. Many national monuments contain only a few acres each, but there are a number of geological exhibits in the national park system of such vast proportions that areas of considerable extent are required for their protection.

THE TWO LARGEST areas in the national park system are national monuments. These are Katmai and Glacier Bay in Alaska. Katmai national monument containing 4,215 square miles, is a volcanic region, the scene of a violent eruption in 1912 which resulted in creation of the Valley of the Ten Thousand Smokes. Glacier Bay national monument, covering 3,589 square miles of territory, embraces several huge glaciers and a bay choked with icebergs. Largest national monument in the United States proper is Death Valley, covering 2,891 square miles of desert and mountains. Here is located the lowest point in the country, 280 feet below the level of the sea.

Katmai and Glacier Bay national monuments are undeveloped and require much preparation and planning on the part of the visitor before he can explore them, but Death Valley, in California, so forbidding to the early immigrant, now can be visited in comfort and safety by the motorist. Death Valley, however, is extremely hot in the summer and the best seasons there are late fall, winter and early spring.

THE FIRST national monument was Devil's Tower in northeastern Wyoming, established by proclamation of Pres. Theodore Roosevelt in 1906. This is an 865-foot column of volcanic rock, which stands high above the surrounding country and may be seen for many miles.

Muir Woods national monument in Marin county, California, just north of the Golden Gate, is another early national monument, having been created in 1908. Here is a small but fine grove of California redwood trees nestling in a deep ravine on the slopes of Mount Tamalpais. The monument was named in honor of John Muir, the famous naturalist, who did much to arouse public sentiment for protection of the redwoods and sequoias.

AMONG THE BETTER known national monuments, primarily of scientific interest, are the Petrified Forest on U. S. Highway 66 in eastern Arizona, the White Sands in south central New Mexico, Jackson Hole in Wyoming, adjoining Grand Teton National park, and the Badlands in South Dakota east of the Black Hills. Less well known, but accessible by highway are the Joshua Tree national monument in southern California, the Organ Pipe Cactus and Saguaro national monuments in Arizona. These three areas all contain unusual exhibits of desert type flora.

Capulin mountain in New Mexico, Craters of the Moon in Idaho, the Devil's Postpile and Pinnacles in California, Sunset Crater in Arizona and Wheeler in Colorado are all national monuments illustrating various forms of volcanic action.

Capulin mountain is a particularly fine example of an extinct volcano, and the highway spirals around the mountain from the base to the rim of the crater. From the summit on a clear day one has a view extending into four states.

PERSONS INTERESTED in caverns will find the following group of national monuments of interest: Jewel Cave in South Dakota, Lehman Caves in Nevada, Oregon Caves near Crater Lake National park in Oregon and Timpanogos Cave in Utah. Shoshone Caverns national monument in Wyoming is not yet developed and is not open to the public.

Students of extinct forms of animal and plant life will profit from a visit to Dinosaur national monument in Colorado and Fossil Cycad national monument in South Dakota.

PERHAPS THE MOST interesting and unusual of all national monuments is a group in southern Utah near the Arizona border, which includes the Arches, the Natural Bridges and the Rainbow bridge national monuments. All three areas are relatively inaccessible. A road does extend fairly close to the first of the natural bridges, but from there on the traveler must proceed on foot or horseback. To reach the Rainbow bridge the visitor must make a two-day trip by horse.

With an automobile with oversized tires it is possible to penetrate the Windows section of Arches national monument, but to the Devil's Garden one must go on foot or horse. The story told in these three national monuments is one of erosion by wind and water.

Other national monuments which also tell the story of erosion are: Cedar Breaks, Zion and Capitol Reef in Utah, Grand Canyon and Chiricahua in Arizona, the Black Canyon of the Gunnison and Colorado in the state of Colorado.

FURTHER INFORMATION pertaining to national monuments may be obtained by writing National Park Service, Washington 25, D. C., or Chicago 54, Ill.

Statue of Liberty Is a New Yorker

WASHINGTON. — Although Bedloe's island, on which the Statue of Liberty stands, is part of New York state, the water surrounding it is part of New Jersey.

Upkeep of the statue, which is now a national monument, is budgeted at about $60,000 a year. The seven families of National Park service employees, who live on the island, vote in New York City. Weight of the statue is placed at 225 tons, including 100 tons of copper and 125 tons of wrought-iron framework. The sheet copper, which has a green patina from oxidation, is three-thirty-seconds of an inch thick, about the thickness of a silver dollar.

The head of the statue first was exhibited in Paris and the right arm and torch in Philadelphia at the centennial of American independence.

SPORT occupies a peculiar place in this country. It appeals to more millions than politics, finance, the theater, motion pictures, literature, art or any other single entry you might mention. When you include baseball, football, boxing, bowling, basketball, golf, tennis, track and field, swimming and the rest of the sports, the combined interest of people between the ages of 6 and 90 blankets the country. You can also toss in both sexes.

Grantland Rice

Governors, senators, congressmen, leading bankers and lawyers, industrial leaders, heads of labor unions, can be indicted and jailed, and a good part of this is taken for granted.

It would be interesting to show you the long list of those named above who have been indicted and convicted. This means those who have been proved to be crooks, thieves, chiselers, even murderers, who held high places in public life. As a rule, or a general average, most of these convictions have been accepted with public yawns.

The public trust in politicians, so-called statesmen, bankers, industrial leaders and labor leaders has never been too strong. Look at the record. Many of these were expected to go wrong. But it has been different in sport.

Sport, amateur and professional, has been the main public trust. Let the governors and the senators and the industrial leaders, plus labor's head delegates, turn crooked, as so many have. But sport must be clean, all the way through.

Crooks Muscle In

The trouble is that sport hasn't been as clean as it should be. Too many smart and crooked hangers-on have been chiseling in through the last 20 years. The crooked, stupid and cowardly underworld has been looking for the open gaps. This applies to racing, football, baseball, basketball and any sport that commands the public interest. The underworld has been looking over sport's rich pastures too long. They have seen the harvest that could be taken over. And too many of them have taken over—especially in racing and boxing. The crooks expect to have even better luck with baseball and football.

And nobody seems to know just what they can do about it. For the crooks, as a rule, are smarter than the honest people. At least they know their goal, and how to get there. And not even the government of the United States has the faintest idea of how these thieves and crooks can be handled. So they are permitting this country's major interest to take its major beating, too deeply interested in politics, which seldom has been on the level.

Boxing has been packed with crooks. So has racing. These are the two sports that need most care, and neither is getting the protection that it needs.

What Can Be Done?

Sport is the basis for handling all juvenile delinquency programs—it is the one program we have left in which the public at large has complete confidence, complete faith. And yet, here are all these thieves, crooks, chiselers and murderers moving in—the slime of creation—and no one seems to know just what to do about it.

Just what should be done about this present sport situation is quite a problem.

Starting from the president of the United States on down through various governors and their commissions, no one seems to bother much, for sport is supposed to take care of itself. Yet those who are handling sport directly find themselves faced with situations they are unable to combat. They know everything except the answers. They see the underworld moving in, and they give out statements which mean nothing.

The players so far, have been the main bulwarks that sport knows. But, who is going to take care of the thieves and the crooks?

The New Arrivals

When a star fails to give out its usual glow, there is always another to take its place. It always happens that way, but rarely in such profusion as the new season has offered us.

As Newhouser, Feller, Pollet and other star pitchers hover around the soapy chute, a lean, lank young fellow by the name of Ewell Blackwell of the Cincinnati Reds is stepping into the gap as the star pitcher of 1947, possibly one of the best of all time. Blackwell has completely outclassed Feller and Newhouser, Pollet, Hughson and others. The Human String Bean has no one even close.

Back of the Red Terror, we have Frank Shea of the Yankees, Warren Spahn of the Braves, Cat Brecheen of the Cardinals, Johnny Sain of the Braves, Schoolboy Rowe and Dutch Leonard of the Phillies.

Burden to Taxpayers

THE NEWS dispatches refer almost continuously to the "Independent Agencies of the Government." Few, if any, American citizens, including members of congress, could provide a full explanation of that term. We have not known the number of these "independent agencies"; we have not known how, or for what purpose, many of them were created; we do not know what they accomplish, the number of people they employ, or the cost of their operation.

A recent report of the Citizen's National committee, non-partisan organization, lists 34 of the "independent agencies." These agencies have no connection with the vast number of bureaus, administrations, offices and what have you, that are directly connected with, and report to, the 10 cabinet departments. They are exclusive of the executive offices of the President, and they are not a part of, or connected with, emergency war agencies, of which seven are still in existence. They are just what the term implies, "independent" of all other government organizations.

Some of these "independent agencies" were created by congress, and in a few cases their existence dates back many years. Others, perhaps most, are the product of executive orders, issued by the President, and date back no farther than 1932. These were the creation of Pres. Franklin Roosevelt.

What purpose do they serve? Many of the "independent agencies" duplicate the work of other "agencies" or other departments of the government.

SAVE TWO BILLIONS

I do not know what the cost of maintaining these 34 "independent agencies" amounts to for a fiscal year, but if we discontinued all of them, the saving would be much more than two billion dollars a year. It will be less for the present year, because congress cut the appropriations heavily, but not nearly enough.

The total number of employees of these 34 "independent agencies" was, in February, 1947, 389,647. Of that number 76,344 were employed in Washington, and the other 313,303 were distributed throughout all the 48 states in branch offices of the "agencies" maintained outside of Washington. In numbers they represent one fifth of all the civilian employees of the federal government.

It is this close to one half million employees of the "independent agencies" that Senator Byrd and his committee have been attempting to radically reduce during the past three or four years. The efforts of that committee have induced congress, in a few cases, to withhold appropriations. Doing that took but few, if any, off the government payroll. The "independent agency" for which an appropriation was refused, was but transferred to some one of the cabinet departments, and the pay of all continued.

To accomplish a real result would mean a thorough overhauling of our vastly expanded and widely ramified operations of the federal government. That is easier to talk about than to do. Political patronage plays a big part in the picture. Jobs mean votes, and as long as the job exists whichever political party may be in administrative control can fill that job.

Those "independent agencies" constitute an expensive, cumbersome and confusing mess, but they do produce votes.

Tax Veto Disappoints

I AM exceedingly wrathful, and sadly disappointed. I had counted on a saving in my income tax for the last six months of 1947. Congress had passed that bill that assured me that saving. Regardless of the size of that expected saving, whether much or little, I had allocated it to other uses. I knew just what I would do with the money. Then the President upset my apple cart by vetoing the bill that had assured me a saving. I imagine there are at least 40 million others who feel about as I do, and who will continue to feel that way in November of 1948. In my case, as in that of others, especially those who must live on a fixed income, whose only participation in the present inflation is that of paying, that veto was bad politics.

IT MAY be some of the automobile manufacturers, or it may be only some of the sales agencies, that are indulging in the practice of gouging the car buyer for all the extras that a new car can carry. They get away with all the traffic will bear right now when there is a shortage of cars, but their disregard of the rights of the buyer will plague them in years to come.

'Lost Colony' Presentation Nets Fishing Town Wealth

In the summer of 1937, the inhabitants of Manteo on Roanoke island off North Carolina gave a series of performances of The Lost Colony, a play written for them about the English colonists who mysteriously disappeared soon after settling there in 1587. The play was so successful that it has since been presented annually, except between 1942 and 1945. In the six summers, 500,000 people spent $4,000,000 in this 1,000-population community whose previous income came mainly from fishing.

Use a paper napkin with a little kerosene oil on it to clean sink and lavatory. It removes stains and grease rapidly.

Avoid soaking split peas, if you want to preserve their natural flavor and color. Begin cooking in boiling water, and cook split peas only one and one-half hours at a full rolling boil.

When you find a flattened place on the nap of the rug after changing furniture around, dampen a chamois, fold several times, and place over the mark. After several hours, remove chamois and mark will be gone.

If plain cake has become dried out, wrap it in a damp cloth and set the cake in a moderate oven until the cloth is dry.

Decorate a lamp shade with snapshots of last summer's vacation spots and then cover the shade with cellophane.

Torn towels may be cut down to guest size. If the towel is small, applique amusing designs for a patch. Make interesting figures such as a bar of soap or small hands.

Old Shell Game

The "old shell game" is actually so old that it is described in very early recorded history. The ancient Greek and Roman words meaning "magician" were derived from this popular trick.

TO BUILD A BETTER TELEPHONE SERVICE

New telephone rates...reflecting the first general increase since 1921...have been approved by the Illinois Commerce Commission in its temporary order of June 24. These new rates were urgently needed to help offset the Company's steadily increasing wage costs and other operating expenses since 1940. They're essential for your continued good service.

Here's what we've been doing...and what we're going to do...to provide more and better telephone service for all who want it.

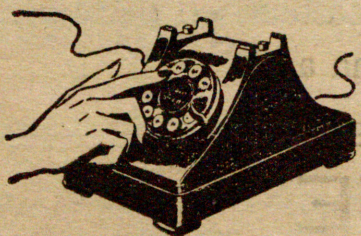

New Buildings, Cable, Wire, Switchboards—Last year we put up more than forty million dollars worth of new buildings, plant and equipment.

This year, Illinois Bell plans to complete over one hundred million dollars worth of additional construction including 7 new exchange buildings, 15 additions to present buildings and nearly a million feet of wire in cable...in order to provide the kind of service you want and need.

Installing 166 New Telephones Per Hour—Last year we installed 352,000 telephones for an all-time record. But almost as fast as we put them in, new orders arrived.

This year, Illinois Bell will spend over ninety million dollars for additional construction including work on 11 new exchange buildings, 37 additions to present buildings and nearly 470,000 miles of wire in cable...in order to provide the kind of service you want and need.

Installing 173 New Telephones Per Hour—Last year we installed 352,000 telephones for an all-time record. But almost as fast as we put them in, new orders arrived.

On the way is the faster, more accurate and more uniform dial service for Chicago and other towns and cities served by Illinois Bell. Speedy dialing of out-of-town calls is not too far in the future, and mobile telephone service for automobiles and ships is already established and growing. Service to planes and trains is next.

Our aim is to make your service still better

To bring you the best service possible...to make that service available at reasonable cost to as many as want it when they want it...that's our big aim. Adequate telephone rates will help us reach that goal. In the long run, they will mean more and better service for your money.

COOK COUNTY Personal Property Assessment For 1947

This publication is the official notice to property owners, of the 1947 personal property assessments made in the town and district indicated.

RETURNS AND ESTIMATES
THE LAW PROVIDES THAT WHERE A PROPERTY OWNER FAILS TO RETURN A SWORN SCHEDULE LISTING HIS PROPERTY, THE ASSESSOR OF COOK COUNTY MUST ESTIMATE ITS VALUE ACCORDING TO HIS BEST JUDGEMENT AND INFORMATION, AND ADD THERETO A PENALTY OF 50 PER CENT. ASSESSMENTS RAISED ON ESTIMATES AND RETURNS HAVE EQUAL STANDING IN LAW.

ASSESSED VALUES LISTED.
The amounts listed herein are the assessed values of personal property as of April 1, 1947 as determined by the Assessor of Cook County.

The amounts listed as the assessed value is not the tax. The tax will be determined by multiplying the assessed value by the tax rate in the town and district in which the property is assessed. The Assessor does not make the tax rate.

BASIS OF COMPLAINT ON ASSESSMENT

Where a property owner has a specific claim of over or under valuation, complaint may be filed with the Board of Appeals in the County Building, immediately after this notice.

INFORMATION ON ASSESSMENTS

Each property owner who has any question in regard to the same should inquire at the office of the Assessor of Cook County, Room 312, County Building. Information will be furnished without cost.

JOHN S. CLARK
Assessor of Cook County.

Fired with the idea of getting a slant on the food preserving methods of the ancients, we've been huddled deep in our library chair again. It was very profitable and pleasant huddling, too. We came across an extraordinary collection of ancient English recipes. Completely fascinated by the odd spelling and wording, we selected four of the recipes to be reproduced in our story—one, a gift to a well-known fourteenth-century king from his apple-polishing chefs, is for marmalade, another for delectable preserved eel. We found an incredible story of a fatal sweet tooth. We opened the Receipt Book of an eighteenth-century glamour-puss, but not until we had read her diary. Nosy, aren't we? Glamour-puss had plenty of admirers and she encouraged them all. Yes, we've included excerpts. Another early preserving expert was a top flight inventor during the Elizabethan period. Our jaw dropped unbecomingly when we realized that we wear one of his inventions and that many people stumble over another—and we do mean stumble! The old English masters and mistresses of the art of preserving had a fine disregard for quantities, and cooking time and temperature, but their antiquated recipes have great charm. Our story? The ARTE OF PRESERVING. Sketches? Yes, by Jonathan McKee.

Corn Drier Leads To Higher Prices

Left to right: Wilbur Mancke, Clarence Beagley, and Cy Radcliffe inspect Mr. Beagley's corn dehydrator in operation on his farm on 94th avenue, south of 159th street, near Orland Park. Mancke and Radcliffe of Tinley Park are implement dealers who have pioneered in the introduction of corn-drying equipment in their locality. In the background may be seen the end of Beagley's crib of 2,300 bushels of thoroughly dried corn.

Corn-drying, long a problem for farmers, has been simplified, according to Clarence Beagley of the Orland Park-Mokena-Tinley area. He was so well satisfied with his purchase last year that he received a featured place in the July 5 issue of Prairie Farmer.

Recently photographed at his place on 94th avenue just south of 159th street, along with Wilbur Mancke of Mokena and Cy Radcliffe, distributors, who operate the business bearing their names in Tinley Park, Mr. Beagley declared that after the purchase of his corn drier last fall from Mancke & Radcliffe, he "brought the moisture down sufficiently with four eight-hour days of drying. I feel the dryer paid for itself the first season."

Prairie Farmer describes the dehydrator, or corn drier, and its use by Mr. Beagley as follows:

Used with Heavy Wire Tunnels

This particular style dehydrator, or corn drier, is a compact unit no bigger than a kitchen table containing a large burner and a drum type fan, and is recommended for use with steel tunnels manufactured by the same company. These tunnels are installed in the crib before filling, as pictured on the first page of the June 7 Prairie Farmer, so that the warmed air can be circulated through the entire crib and eliminate any "wet spots." Or, they can be placed on the ground, corn or hay piled on top, and hot air directed under the mass to dry it to the desired degree.

Still another adaptation of the drying process is the use of a flat platform for drying shelled corn, or soybeans. Sections of flat, heavily galvanized 1/4-inch steel wire with 2-inch by 4-inch spacings are placed on top of concrete blocks spaced about 20 inches apart in the bottom of the bin. Hardware cloth of 1/4 or 3/8 inch mesh is spread on top to prevent the kernels falling through, and after the bin has been filled with grain, heated air is directed through the air space at the bottom.

This is a well-built drier which is simple in operation, and fire-proof. It has an automatic feature that shuts off the fuel supply whenever the blower stops because of failure of the tractor or electric motor power applied to it, thus preventing damage to the drier and crib. A fine mesh Monel metal screen prevents sparks from the burner being blown into the crib.

200 Degrees Recommended

The burner uses kerosene or distillate at the rate of about 4 gallons per hour, when operated to produce an air blast heated to 200 degrees, which is recommended. Temperatures higher than 200 degrees Fahrenheit are not advised because of the danger of burning or "carmelizing" the corn, particularly near the drier outlet. About 5,000 cubic feet of air per minute are delivered by the machine.

The amount of time needed to dry a bin of corn is of course dependent on several variables, including the amount of corn, the size and width of the crib, the spacing of the tunnels in the crib, the amount of moisture present and the degree of dryness desired, and the outside temperature. It is particularly stressed that enough tunnels or ventilating ducts be installed, else there is the danger of leaving "wet spots" in the crib.

Increases Crib Capacity

The crib dried by Clarence Beagley is 48 feet long, 12 feet high, and 10 feet wide, containing 2,300 bushels of corn. Because of the width of this crib, it was formerly necessary to provide an aisle 2 1/2 feet wide the length of the crib, which decreased its capacity 25 percent.

Last fall Beagley installed a single tunnel the length of the floor of the crib, with eight vertical tunnels branching from it. As he reports at the beginning of this article, in four 8-hour drying periods he brought the moisture content down to 17 percent. He did not measure the moisture before drying, but reports that 80 percent of the corn held in his locality either spoiled, or had to be shelled and sold.

Beagley lives in a cash corn area, and figures that without the dehydrator he would have been forced to sell his corn during the winter when the price was from $1.10 to $1.20 a bushel. He still has the 2,300 bushels of corn, and the current price for it is over $1.90. The dehydrator cost $375, so it paid for itself and then some, the very first year of use.

When Beagley's corn was being dried, he said the amount of moisture driven out of it was "amazing." It was forced out the sides and up to the metal roof, from which it dripped off in small rivulets. In fact, Mancke and Radcliffe recommend that if possible it is best to operate the drier for a longer period of time up to 24 hours and dry the corn all at once. Otherwise the moisture pushed out to the edges and sides of the crib is drawn back into the corn to some extent. Also they advise operating the blower for a time after the burner is turned off, to aid in drying the moisture forced to the outside of the crib.

Many of the steel wire ventilators or tunnels are already in use, and they alone do a great deal of good in drying wet or soft corn. When ventilators are already installed, it is a simple matter to pull a dehydrator up to one of the lower openings, run up a tractor for power, and dry the crib quickly and conveniently. It takes such a short time to do a thorough drying job, that several farmers could go together to buy a drier and find it very profitable. It weighs 700 pounds, and is mounted on skids for easy moving.

HOMER

The Husky Hustlers held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening July 8, in the Ralph Reiter home. Mrs. Reiter served delicious refreshments. The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Goodman August 11.

The Homer-Lockport Home Bureau unit will meet in the home of Mrs. Perry Wise Wednesday afternoon July 23, with Mrs. Wm. Wilker and Mrs. W.H. Lievens as assisting hostesses. The annual election of officers will be held that day. There will also be a 4-H club demonstration. Mrs. Wilker will give the major lesson on floor coverings and Mrs. B.D. Branky the minor lesson on First Aid for cuts and scalds.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gorham were breakfast guests of the Julius Westphals in Joliet Saturday morning.

Frank Gardner of Lockport was a weekend guest of his friend Delbert Sheperd.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rowley and Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Kasper were Friday evening guests of Mrs. Bell Storm on Maple road.

Mrs. Anna Welter is suffering from an infected hand.

Mr. and Mrs. William Roberts have returned from a week's stay at Charlton, Iowa, where they were called by the serious illness of Mr. Robert's mother. The elderly lady was much improved when they left her.

The John Parker herd of cattle led the association with an average production during the past month of 1138 pounds of milk and 42.2 pounds of fat, according to the report of Tester Don Gray, for D.H.I.A. No. 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Loucks were Sunday evening dinner guests in the H.J. Schroeder home at Peotone.

Mr. and Mrs. C.G. Rowley entertained their family at a picnic dinner on their home lawn Sunday. Guests were Mrs. Marie Ott and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rowley and children and Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Kasper and daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Donahue and son and Mrs. Anna Welter were Sunday dinner guests in the John Welter home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Carlson visited friends in Gary, Ind., Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Braman of Plainfield who were Homer residents for many years, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Leona, to Lt. Robert E. Donnelly of New York City, which took place at Urbana Tuesday afternoon July 8. The bride is a graduate of Joliet township high school and Junior college and is now attending Illinois university from where she will graduate in January. Following that she will join her husband in Japan where he is stationed with the army. She taught school for one year before joining the Waves in 1944. She served two years with the Waves, mostly in Washington, D.C. Mr. Donnelly was a student at the university of Michigan before entering the army, four and one half years ago.

Wilfred Allen Rohde, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Rohde of Lemont died Wednesday afternoon July 9 at Chicago Research hospital, following an operation for cataract. Funeral services were held at the Boe Funeral chapel in Lemont with burial in St. Matthews cemetery. Beside his parents, a sister, Judith Anne, aged three months, survives him. His mother is the former Margaret Welter, a sister of Mrs. Barney Welter.

Rufe's Ramblings

By Rufe Pickett

by Rufe Pickett

It was his first trip to the city. True he had been up town back home, but even on Saturday evenings that was nothing to compare with what was going on as he stood there on the corner of LaSalle and Van Buren streets. The thunder of the elevated trains overhead; the honking of automobile horns; and most of all everybody hurrying, hurrying. He felt that certainly folks wouldn't all be running unless they had good reason for it and he felt a strange impulse to go charging down the street himself and try to get away from it all. A mounted policeman came along and his horse walked up to the stranger and sez, "Listen here young fellow. You'll get used to all this noise and confusion after a while. I know what I am talking about because I was born and raised out in a quiet community my self...."

Way back yonder when I was a boy I read a book called Aesop's Fables. It told about a lion talking to a mouse; an ox talking to a dog, and all such like. At the time I read it I thought it was a lot of bunk because I didn't figure one animal could understand what another was saying, but when I saw that colt hitched up to a milk wagon a standing there and acting so scared, and that policeman's horse going over and putting his nose against his, I knew just what he was telling him. You see it all came to me because it was just twenty-eight years ago that I first got off the train and walked out there and stood bewildered on that very same corner.

Sam Helps with the Dishwashing

Dropped in at the Abernathy's just the other evening—and there was Sam, out in the kitchen with an apron on, helping his missus wash the supper dishes. (And then I learned later he'd helped cook the supper, too.)

Of course, Sam could have settled into his favorite chair, enjoyed his evening glass of beer, and left all the messy kitchenwork to Dixie. But he kind of likes her company—and she in turn certainly appreciates his help.

In fact, sharing the housework and the mealtime chores is sort of a bond between them... like sharing that friendly glass of beer together, when the work is done. It's one of those little all-important things in marriage.

From where I sit, the time that a man and wife can spend with each other in this busy world today is all too precious. And the more things they can do together, the better.

The Ladies Aid of the Immanuel Lutheran church will hold a bakery sale this Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Dunham's Hardware store.

Carol Ann Benson, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Benson was christened in St. John Evangelical church, recently. Sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Benson of New Lenox. Kenneth Benson is a medical patient in St. Joseph's hospital in Joliet.

The Ladies Aid of Immanuel Lutheran church met last Thursday with Mrs. Chris Kohl. Their next meeting will be Thursday August 14 in the home of Mrs. Alvin Kohl.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mast in Silver Cross hospital in Joliet July 10. He has been named James Allan and weighed 7 pounds 11½ ounces. Mr. Mast is staying for a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mast.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cappel, who was returned to Silver Cross hospital for treatment, is improving nicely. It is expected he will soon be home. A special nurse is in attendance at the hospital.

Miss Violet Tyler of Chicago spent a week's vacation with her sister, Mrs. Walter Cappel and husband. Last Sunday Mrs. Cappel's sister Florence Tyler also of Chicago joined them and helped Mrs. Cappel celebrate her birthday. Miss Violet Hurley was also a guest at the birthday dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schlacks have gone on a six weeks motor trip to the west coast.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dath is spending a few days of his vacation with relatives near Bloomington.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ambuehl and family returned Saturday evening from a motor trip to Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa.

Miss Betty Beagley returned this week from several weeks vacation with her brother and family at Hobart, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Leyerle returned last Friday from a vacation in Miss.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rodeghiero in Silver Cross hospital July 9. He has been named Dean William and weighed six pounds and 7 ounces. Mrs. Rodeghiero and baby returned from the hospital Tuesday and is staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Rueckert and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGregor moved to Chicago last Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Dean Rueckert who have purchased the vacated house will move in to it sometime in August after decorating is completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stanger are building a new home in the south subdivision.

STORY OF A CITY WHOSE PEOPLE SET UP PLANS TO GIVE GIFTS TO IT

Interesting things pop up now and then. Sometimes the "things" that pop up are momentarily interesting; other times there is a solid kind of something that simply hangs on and makes one feel that in the "thing" there is value.

That's the way it was with something called to our attention recently by Mrs. Harold F. Jones, who found it while mulling through a magazine. It is a story that has been repeated a number of times, but as long as the thing goes on the story will always be fresh.

But to get to the story, it is about a nice city in Arkansas—Fayette, with a population of 8,212, where a community birthday party is an annual affair and the city is the beneficiary. There people give to the city instead of expecting the government to give to the people.

The thing started some time in the past—long enough to become an institution. It began when a local physician gave $1,000 and the city gave an equal amount to improve the public park. Then the doctor had another idea—and out went another thousand—just like that, except he added a suggestion to it, that every year the community have a birthday party and that everybody, children as well as adults, give the town a present.

Out of that has grown the birthday institution, and gifts have included playground and recreational equipment, books for the library, and a mountain of other gifts having actual value to the community.

Such rummaging has its value and we hope Mrs. Jones does more rummaging like that and that it will be "catching."

FLYING FARMERS MEET

Shades of shades! "What's this old world coming to!" easily could have been heard not many years ago if some one had been bold enough to suggest that flying farmers would in the future have an airplane convention.

But it's come to just that. For two days, August 4 and 5, flying farmers will be in session at Urbana, and every farmer there will have flown his own plane or traveled in the plane of his farmer neighbor.

The meeting is being sponsored by Prairie Farmer, and flying farmers are warned that only 1,400 can be served at the banquet! And that gives you an idea of the kind of crowd the farm paper expects to fly to the convention.

Governor Kim Sigler of Michigan will be a featured speaker at the banquet. He is called a "farmer by proxy" and flies his own plane on official and private business.

Not so many years ago, George Bernard Shaw, poking fun at all things American, came out with some unusually caustic comments. A number of newspapers rose to the bait and howled in protest, but one editor held his fire until Mr. Shaw paid his much-publicized visit to Miami.

This editor's paper published a lengthy report of the arrival of Mrs. George Bernard Shaw. Mrs. Shaw went to this dinner, Mrs. Shaw attended that function, Mrs. Shaw said this, and Mrs. Shaw did that.

Then at the bottom of the long article was this casual afterthought:

"Mrs. Shaw was accompanied by her husband, George Bernard Shaw, a writer."

When Your Back Hurts -

And Your Strength and Energy Is Below Par

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. See Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on one being less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

THE FICTION CORNER

KITTENS HAVE CLAWS

By FAITH ELLEN SMITH

"YOU'VE got to go after them," Doris said. She sat on the upholstered wall seat, opened her bag, took out her vanity case and her cigarette case. "That's the trouble with you. You're mousy."

"I'm what?" Nan asked. She sat on the stiff, hard chair on the other side of the little table and took off her gloves. They were white gloves, rubbed shabby by repeated cleanings.

"Mousy!" said Doris. "Mousy girls never get anywhere. Remember what I said that first day we saw Ralph going up in the elevator?"

"You said, 'There's the man I'm going to marry, unless he's got a wife and ten kids.'"

Doris studied her reflection in the mirror of her vanity. Her hand, long, crimson nails gleaming, patted the crisp blonde waves beneath her small hat. A large diamond on her finger kindled to green and orange flame under the subdued lights of the dining room.

"Well, he had a wife and one kid, but I did it, didn't I? Do you suppose I got him by sitting still and wishing for him?"

"No," Nan said. "I used my head. I found out he worked for J. B. Simpson. I made up to the Simpson crowd when I met them in the washroom and took to calling for that dumb egg of an Adams girl for lunch. I got introduced to him—"

"I remember," Nan said. "I worked to get that man. If I hadn't, I wouldn't have an apartment on East Sixtieth Street and this set of summer furs that cost fifteen hundred dollars and my own car—and a house in the country next fall, when Ralph gets his promotion . . . Now, about this man—?" she said.

"What man?" said Nan. Color of a newly open wild rose flooded her face. Her childishly honest brown eyes were starry.

"How should I know what man? I haven't seen you since I had you to the wedding six months ago. A girl that's attractive to men and shows some initiative might be married in six months. But of course you're the kind that will drag along waiting for him to wake up and know you're on earth until he marries somebody else. . . . You wouldn't be so bad, at that, if you took a little pains with yourself and got some decent clothes."

Nan, who had started to slip off the coat of her suit, buttoned it again. The lining, she remembered, had ripped a little on the shoulder.

"And you'd be a good bet for some man who wanted a sensible, economical wife that didn't mind housework."

"Thank you," Nan said. "You would! I never could learn to boil water; but the way you used to cook and scrub and fuss around when we lived together—I Well, it's lucky I had what it takes to get a fellow that can afford a servant. . . . But, of course I'm younger than you are."

"Eleven months," Nan said softly. " . . . Just a baby, really. Ralph always calls me Babe. . . . Did I

"There's the man I'm going to marry—unless he's got a wife and 10 kids now."

tell you he's in line for the vice-presidency?"

"Is he?" "Sure of it, my dear! J. B. depends on him for everything. He and J. B. are like that. . . . Remember the fellow came up to the apartment with him the week before we were married?"

"Of course. Why wouldn't I?" "Well, you moused around as if you were only half there. Hardly opened your mouth all evening. That was J. B."

"Was it?" "There you go! That's just what I mean. You don't take any interest. Now if this man—"

"But what makes you think there is a—"

"It's written all over you, darling. You're in love. I never saw a worse case."

Nan's big brown eyes lowered to her glass. She became peony-red.

"Well, if you don't see fit to confide in your best friend, that's your business. But you let me tell you this for your own good. If he's worth having, don't let some other girl beat you to it! You will, though. You're all set for being a neat little old maid, living on a pension and loving a pet cat—"

"I don't like cats," Nan murmured.

Doris extended a toeless suede sandal and a slender, silk-clad leg. "Cats!" she said. "Look at that run."

"I see it," Nan said. "Ralph bought me an angora kitten for my birthday. The darn thing must have been at these stockings."

"I'll have to dash in somewhere and get another pair and put them on. You come with me, and you can have these. They'll do for you, if you're careful mending them."

"I can't come with you," Nan said.

"You can't? Why not?"

"I've got a—a kind of a date."

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

HUMAN suffering—what a problem it is to all of us, in greater or smaller measure. From the broken heart of men and women comes the question "Why?"

We cannot always answer, nor do we fully know the meaning and purpose. We must often simply put ourselves and our loved ones into the hands of God, trusting him to bring us into assurance and victory.

There are some things we can know, and they are most helpful. The book of Job reveals much concerning the background of suffering and its uses and advantages. It is not all loss and pain. God does not forget his people in their hour of trial.

Job had suffered the loss of property, family, and was now personally afflicted by sickness of his body. His friends who came to comfort him had added to his troubles by their pious platitudes about suffering being the result of sin (cf. John 9:3), and so on.

There was enough truth in what they said to make it hurt, and so we are doubly glad we are given a look behind the scenes. We learn that this was not a struggle between God and Job, nor even between Satan and Job. We see

I. The Battle Between God and Satan (Job 1:8).

READ the entire story here and you will see that Satan, when faced by God with the godly example of Job's life, threw down a challenge. He declared that the only reason Job loved God was because he received so much good out of it, because God protected him.

The issue was clearly drawn; the question was whether God was able to keep a man in the midst of trial and suffering. Was His grace sufficient for the dark hours of life as well as the happy and bright ones?

Having stripped Job of all his possessions, and left him childless and heart broken, Satan had to admit failure up to that point. But he sneeringly slandered both Job and God by saying that Job was not concerned about these other things so long as his own body was unharmed (2:4, 5).

So the Lord permitted him to afflict Job's body, and we see the conflict raging in

II. The Battleground—the Life of Job (2:7-10; 19:7-10).

THE mystery of God's permissive will enters into the picture here, and we learn too that Satan, while a mighty being, has limits to his power. God may give him liberty to test his people, but it is never with the thought that they will fall; rather to prove that they can stand true come what may.

Was any mortal ever more afflicted than Job? We find him finally an outcast, sitting on an ash heap, scraping the awful sores upon his poor body.

Job did have his times of questioning and doubt (19:7-10). He felt at times that God had forsaken him. He misunderstood the providences of God. But through it all he held on to his faith in God. He could do without his possessions (1:21). God could even take his life and he would say, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust him." He saw beyond the grave, for he knew that if his body were destroyed he would still see his Redeemer.

What more sublime expression of faith could a man make than to say in his hour of seeming despair, "I know that my Redeemer liveth."

How did it all come out in the end? That is our last point.

III. The Outcome—Victory for God in Job (42:1-5; James 5:11).

JOB had come to the end of himself. Judging himself to be unworthy (42:6), he repented of all his own self-righteousness and cast himself upon the mercy of God. God then vindicated him and restored him to a place of blessing and usefulness.

The answer then to our problem is this—God is able to keep to the uttermost those who put their trust in him (Heb. 7:25) through the grace he gives. Suffering may be in his permissive will for our own self-judgment and growth in grace. But back of it all is the assurance that God knows about it, he has not turned away; that in due season, if we faint not, we shall see victory.

Ultimately, the question is not whether we can stand or not, but whether God is able to keep us in the midst of the onslaught of the world, the flesh and the devil. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Greeks Used It First

The ancient Greeks, who were the first to use it, gave us the name for the mineral asbestos. The word in Greek meant "inextinguishable," although now it is practically synonymous for "fireproof." Fibers of the mineral are fabricated today into many important products, including textiles, brake linings and fireproof building materials such as asbestos cement shingles, siding and building board.

First U. S. Cows

When Christopher Columbus came to America there were no cows, but on his second voyage in 1495, he brought cattle and other farm animals to the islands of the West Indies. The first U. S. cows were brought over to the Jamestown colony in 1611. The few cows that arrived at the Plymouth colony in 1624 really marked the beginning of the American dairy industry.

What's in a Name

Nickel got its name from "kupfernickel," a German term expressing the disgust of miners who, on searching for copper (kupfer) and finding ore that seemed to contain it, but didn't, said it was the work of Old Nic. Later the demon metal came to be known as nickel.

World's Longest Tunnel

Longest tunnel in the world is being built in the Andes, between Chile and Argentina. When completed it will be 14.5 miles long, and will exceed by 2.1 miles the length of the Simplon tunnel in the Alps.

Virginia's Old Churches

Fifty colonial churches established by the Church of England still are used by the Protestant Episcopal church and the rest by other denominations.

New Insect Theory

California and Florida citrus growers may care to test the claims of an Australian who plants tomato plants under orange trees to achieve freedom from insect pests.

Sacred Dolls of Indians

Wooden images of gods, regarded as sacred, served as dolls for American Indian girls, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica. The dolls were used in religious instructions.

Consumption of Meat

Consumption of meat per capita in the United States has reached 153 pounds, made up of 71 pounds of beef, 10 pounds of veal, 6 pounds of lamb and 66 pounds of pork. However, the United States does not lead in per capita consumption of meat. Three foreign countries outrank us: New Zealand with 321 pounds per person; Argentina with 300 pounds, and Australia with 205 pounds.

Lack of Milk Serious

The Pilgrims made the mistake of not bringing cows and lack of milk was said to have had a bearing on the high death rate, particularly of children. Cows were required to be brought on later ships. When the frontier moved westward, the covered wagons were accompanied by cows.

Paper Reflects Light

A piece of white paper reflects nearly as much light as a mirror, says Better Vision Institute. The reason you cannot see a reflection of yourself in paper is because the paper is not flat and smooth like a mirror, but contains many irregularities which diffuse the light.

Real Liberator of Chile

O'Higgins, liberator of Chile, forbade, in 1818, the use of titles and coats of arms, bettered conditions among the lower classes and made the land available to the poor in order to form a class of small land owners.

Fastest Train

Fastest passenger train run in the United States is recorded by a train operating between Kenosha, Wis., and Waukegan, Ill. The train makes an average speed of 85.4 miles per hour.

Origin of Eskimo Dog

The true Eskimo dog is a native of Greenland and Labrador and, as it closely resembles the gray wolf, it is believed to be a domesticated species of wolf.

Temperature Effects

When the temperature reaches 100 degrees men will eat food yielding 3,200 calories a day, but when the temperature falls to 30 degrees they will eat 5,000 calories.

WANTS HOMES

We have cash buyers waiting for anyone wishing to sell property. Kindly phone our office for one of our special agents to call. We have sold millions of dollars worth of property on the South and Southwest sides. I specialize in suburban homes. I don't fool around, the minute your home is listed with me for sale I get ready to advertise in the Chicago Newspapers and seven salesmen start to work on it. They start calling on clients who have been out to my office and told us just what they would be interested in I send a copy of the paper to each owner where my advertisement appears. In this way you are sure your property has been advertised. A great many times the property is sold before we have a chance to advertise. When a deal is pending we hold off our advertisement a few days as each salesman has many cash buyers to get in touch with immediately. I demand action from my Salesmen and if the house is not sold within a reasonable time it is advertised again and the Salesmen are instructed to double their efforts. If you price your property at a fair price and give it to me for sale I can assure you that you will get quick action.

PICK YOUR CORN EARLY!

Dry It In Crib, with Behlen All-Steel
Ventilators and Tunnels

New, modern, fast way to dry corn.
No more waiting for corn to dry in fields. Pick early, when mechanical pickers work best. Crib it, and let Behlen Ventilators and Tunnels dry corn faster than you ever dreamed possible.

GOODBYE TO CORN BORERS!

Agricultural colleges and experimental stations recommend picking early, to help control corn borers. You get your corn into cribs to dry, and shred or chop stalks and plow under before ground freezes, to kill the borers.

Behlen Tunnels not only ventilate, but are very handy for shelling. Just run sheller
"drag" into tunnel, as at left. Pull out tunnel sections one by one. Corn drops onto conveyor belt. Saves hours of labor!

COME IN NOW!

Don't wait. We have Behlen All-Steel Ventilators and Corn Tunnels on hand now. But due to present industrial situation, we cannot promise we will get any more this fall. We strongly urge you to come in right away, while we are still able to supply you. Cost is less than for old-style wood ventilators.
